

St. Augustine
Ordinations
Friday Morning

The Rev. Leonard J. Olivier, SVD and the Rev. John N. LeBauve, SVD are to be ordained to the Holy Priest hood on June 29, 1951.

The Most Rev. Richard O. Garow, Bishop of Natchez, will ordain the two seminarians during a Pontifical Mass at 8:30. The seminary choir, under the direction of the Rev. Hubert Posnjenski, will chant the Mass for the occasion.

The Rev. Leonard J. Olivier, SVD, of Sacred Heart Parish in Lake Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Olivier. After twelve years of prayer and study the holy priesthood is Father Olivier's forever.

Father Olivier was an altar boy at his home parish church when he heard the call of Christ, "Come Follow Me." In September of 1939 he entered St. Augustine's Seminary as a student in second year high school. In three years the young aspirant completed his high school studies and went to St. Mary's Seminary at Techy, Illinois. He remained there for four years, the first two being spent in spiritual training (Novitate) and the latter two in Junior College (Juniorate).

By 1946, the young seminarian at himself once more at St. Augustine Seminary to begin his major seminary studies, comprising two years of philosophy and four years of theology. He reached his goal, the holy priesthood. He is the first from his home parish to be ordained a priest.

The first Mass of the newly ordained will take place on Saturday morning June 30 at 8:30 o'clock. The public is invited to these ceremonies, and many friends are expected to be present from the Gulf Coast and the surrounding sections.

U.S. WEATHER BUREAU
AL EXPLAINS ODD MIST

In reply to Mr. James L. Cruikshank, of Holly-Bluff-on-the-Jordan, the

Dept. of Commerce Weather Bureau stated that the strange mist which been observed in the atmosphere cently is a haze condition which been prevalent in many sections of Southern United States, due to a canic eruption in the Cape Verde lands off the West Coast of Africa.

It was stated that an amount of volcanic ash was dispersed by the eruption into the air and widely distributed. The eruption took place on June 12 and continued an indeterminate number of days.

In local sections many people believed the mist to be a light fog. They were puzzled at the presence of ash at this particular time of the year.

The letter addressed to Mr. C. Stevens and signed by W. R. Stevens, District Official in charge, clarifies the situation.

MISS HAZEL DRYSDALE
DIES IN N. O. HOSPITAL

The many friends of Miss Drysdale will regret to learn that she died, after an extended illness, at the Baptist Hospital in New Orleans, Monday, June 24.

Miss Drysdale served in the schools as an instructor for more than twenty years, and at the time of her retirement was principal of the Wright High School. She was a native of New Orleans and maintained a home in Bay St. Louis at 468 North Third. She is survived by a sister, Mrs. C. Chamberlain, also of North Bay St. Louis.

Rev. Charles Johnson will conduct the religious services in New York and interment will be in the St. Cemetery. Arrangements are under supervision of Tharp-Sonthmeier Funeral Home. At the time of this writing the time of burial was undecided due to the arrival of a niece.

Enjoy Yourself On The Fourth But... DRIVE CAREFULLY

If annual figures repeat themselves, upwards of eight persons will be killed outright the coming long-holiday weekend of July 4, and more than 45 persons will be painfully, if not seriously injured, some of them permanently; and the two main causes of these tragedies will be excessive speed on the highways and driving while drinking. These two violations of the law seem to run together, especially on holidays and long weekends.

Therefore, a stern warning can not be worded too strongly against these two violations to insure each and everyone having an enjoyable holiday weekend.

Results from an intensified law enforcement program by The Mississippi Highway Patrol, in cooperation with other law enforcement officials, is showing some satisfaction, but much is yet to be accomplished through education and the wholehearted cooperation of the public before the highways can be termed completely safe.

The cooperation of the driving public toward safe and sane driving habits would be much more satisfactory to each and all concerned than having to suspend or revoke someone's driving license. Suspending or revoking the licenses of violators as a means of curtailing death and injury is a drastic preventive measure. But too many drivers whose licenses are suspended temporarily fail to realize that the lesson they are receiving may prevent them from losing their right to drive permanently because of a fatal accident to themselves or someone else.

However, drastic as this means may be, the Safety Patrol will continue to operate under its intensified law enforcement program and if there are those who refuse to cooperate to make our highways safe for everyone, then the Patrol has no other alternative but to enforce the law to the limit.

As mentioned earlier, the cooperation of the general driving public would be much more satisfactory and would insure each and everyone having a happy and enjoyable long-holiday July 4th weekend.

YOU CAN SURVIVE

(Released by the Hancock County Civil Defense Council and printed in the editorial section at the Council's request)

You can live through an atom bomb raid and you won't have to have a geiger counter, protective clothing, or special training in order to do it.

The secrets of survival are:
KNOW THE BOMB'S TRUE DANGERS.
KNOW THE STEPS YOU CAN TAKE TO ESCAPE THEM.

Beginning next week in this newspaper, the Hancock County Civil Defense Council will issue weekly bulletins for the benefit of the reading public. These bulletins will deal with "Survival Under Atomic Attack."

The local Council does not intend to spread alarm. It is hopeful that Divine Providence may spare our USA and our brethren in foreign lands the horrors of atomic explosions resulting from the fury, the violence, and the fierceness of another war. But if an atomic explosion does come to us or to our neighboring communities then the Council believes that our people in Hancock County should be intelligently informed not only in the proper method of protecting ourselves but also in the proper method of systematically helping to feed, clothe, house, and render medical aid to people of our neighboring cities who may be forced to come to us for assistance.

Now Is The Best Time To

PAY YOUR DEBTS

The following is copy of an advertisement of the Thigpen Hardware Co., published in the Picayune Item, and which we thought worthy of reproducing:

With the prevailing high prices, if we spend a dollar now, we get about 50¢ worth of goods or about half the value of the dollar, based on a few years ago.

But, if we pay a debt now that was contracted some time ago, we can use a dollar worth 50¢ to pay a full dollar debt. There never was a time when it meant more to pay a debt than at this time when a dollar will pay 100¢ worth of nothing, except payment of a debt. In other words, you probably get for your money, when you now pay a debt, double what you can get for it if you wait a while to pay it. There has never been a time when it meant so much to save more and spend less, for if things go down in price, your saved up money will buy more and more as prices go down.

Eighteen years ago, a 1000 lb. old bull would pay a $15 debt. Today this same animal will pay a $250 debt. In 1905 a hundred hens would pay a $30 debt—now 100 hens will pay a $150 debt. 18 years ago it would have taken about 20 hogs to pay a $250 debt. Now 8 hogs will pay a $250 debt and you would have a little money left over. In 1905 a bale of cotton to bring $1000. Now less than a bale will bring that amount.

Suppose you now owe a $250 debt and you don't pay it. You can get out 8 or 9 hogs, and then prices go down. Suppose the price is 1953. It would then take 16 hogs to pay a $250 debt. Now 8 hogs is just what you can get for it.

Suppose you now owe about $1 in 1903. Now a few cents will pay that debt. Suppose the price of a pig is 10¢. Now a pig will pay a $1 debt. Suppose the price of a pig is 10¢. Now a pig will pay a $1 debt.

Suppose you now owe about $1 in 1903. Now a few cents will pay that debt. Suppose the price of a pig is 10¢. Now a pig will pay a $1 debt.

If farm produce should go down, and the farmer would have to produce one-half again as much to pay a debt as he has to produce now. Or, if wages should go down one-third, a man would have to work 3 days to pay down one-third, a man would have to work 3 days to pay a debt that he can now work 2 days and pay. Isn't it much better to pay down a debt now than to wait and have to pay down with high priced things?

It's always good to get out of debt, to reduce debts. This is particularly true now when you can pay more easily than ever before in history. When one day's work will pay more than 5 or 6 days work would pay if things go down substantially.

"ON THE RIVIERA" AT THE HI-WAY DRIVE-IN SUN., MON. & TUES., 1-23

Lavish is the word to describe the new Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor musical, "On The Riviera," on the Hi-Way Drive-In Theatre's screen late show Saturday 11:15 and Sun., Mon. and Tues., July 1-23.

Stars Danny Kaye, Gene Tierney, and Corinne Calvet cavorted on elaborate sets, wore fabulous costumes, and in general out-did Hollywood at its own game.

For a scene at an airport runway, the studio paved the path with fifty thousand dollars worth of minks. When Kaye was informed of the plush underfooting, rented from a Los Angeles furrier at a cost of two thousand five hundred dollars per day, he remarked with a startled grimace, "Walk on them? In shoes?" He couldn't do that, he said, and asked if it would be all right to walk in his stocking feet.

Director Walter Lang agreed. "Thanking the film mentor, Kaye remarked: 'I always treat mink with respect. I can remember when I could have lived for a year on one mink.'"

Not only were his tooties given the royal treatment, the rest of Danny's frame was treated with equal elegance. In another scene, Danny wore a six hundred eighty five dollar suit. Not designed to set any new style trend in men's clothes, the garment was corded with bugle beads to give it an iridescent quality for the Technicolor camera.

"On Betty Grable, it might not look good," said Danny, "but on me—well, it's a good thing I'm a comedian."

Kaye's co-star, Gene Tierney, was bedecked in a bevy of off-the-shoulder gowns. One such get-up saw sixty yards of tulle hanging from her hips. Aside from gowns which included one of red jersey, a pleated pale green chiffon suit, and a Grecian chiffon outfit, Gene wore an unusual bed jacket made of ostrich feathers and a white, filmy and feminine negligee.

International ambassadors of good looks, Corinne Calvet, a shoe fancier, was furnished with ten pairs of shoes and slippers, a generous helping of Faye Emerson-type gowns, and tailored bathing suits.

Add top songs, dances, comedy, and an extra generous helping of romance, and you'll get the year's most lavish film musical, "On The Riviera."

There is no need to hurry to get where you do not care to be.

Pedestrian Protection

Jay-walking doesn't save time. You usually get stranded in mid-street trying to buck traffic. It isn't worth the risk you run of being hit. So cross only with the green traffic light, advises the American Automobile Association. If there are pedestrian signals, wait for the "Walk" signal. You get there just as fast—and more safely.

Chrysler Producing 400 V-8 180 h.p. Engines per Day

Chrysler has produced the 25,000th V-8 180 horsepower FirePower engine, reports J. A. O'Malley, General Sales Manager.

"Production of this engine, the most revolutionary auto engine in 27 years, has now reached the rate of approximately 400 a day," said O'Malley.

"We hope to have production of FirePower engines up to 450 a day in July and hold that rate for the remainder of the year unless unforeseen circumstances result from national defense program requirements."

"Public demand for the 1951 Chrysler cars with FirePower engines has been accelerating as the public learns of this new engine's ability to give super performance on regular grade gasoline by adding its own mechanical octane to the power-giving octane of the gasoline itself."

O'Malley pointed out that this is a revolutionary concept in automotive engine development as automotive engines generally directed their research to the development of high compression, high octane engines to secure greater efficiency mainly by adaptation to high octane fuels—fuels which are unavailable today, he noted.

"FirePower" engines, on the other hand, are the result of a different course followed by Chrysler engineers and directed toward the more difficult and radical development of high compression low-octane engines which give mechanical efficiency by mechanical means. This, in effect, meant they built mechanical instead of chemical octane into the engine with the result that greater performance and economy are possible today with the fuels now available," O'Malley said.

"Samson and Delilah" At Star Theatre Next Sun. Mon. & Tues., July 1-23

Hailed as his greatest motion picture achievement, Cecil B. DeMille's "Samson and Delilah" will be at the Star Theatre Sun., Mon. & Tues., July 1-23.

Hedy Lamarr and Victor Mature, who portray the title roles, head a cast of thousands including George Sanders, Angela Lansbury and Henry Wilcoxon. The picture marks Miss Lamarr's first appearance in Technicolor.

Based on the Bible story, "Samson and Delilah" follows in the wake of such magnificent DeMille spectacles as "The Ten Commandments," "King of Kings," "The Sign of the Cross" and recently "Unconquered."

In the planning stages since 1935 when the first screen play was written, the actual shooting of the film took only 66 days once production got under way. This was no small feat inasmuch as there were huge crowds of extras in many scenes, and a great number of technical problems to be solved.

The destruction of the Philistine Temple, for example, was a sequence that took eight days to film. And other key scenes in the picture—Samson's bare-handed battle with a lion, his assault on 1000 Philistine soldiers, a fearful wedding feast brawl—also took more than a week to finish to DeMille's satisfaction.

Casting of the title roles lasted thru more than a year of exhaustive tests. Mature had little competition, but Miss Lamarr won out over such beauties as Vivien Leigh, Jennifer Jones, Paulette Goddard, Ava Gardner, Gene Tierney and Joan Fontaine.

As in all DeMille pictures, the supporting roles are handled by veteran players. "Samson and Delilah" boasts such well known names as Nils Asther, William Farnum, Julia Faye, John Miljan, Fritz Leiber, Moroni Olsen and Pedro de Cordoba. Olive Deering and Fay Holden have important featured roles.

Any Cecil B. DeMille production is an important screen event. "Samson and Delilah" is no exception and might well be an Academy Award contender, according to advance reports from Hollywood insiders.

He solicits the support of all citizens. He respects and serves the poor and the rich alike. Here are some of the interesting facts the Courthouse records show since Ed P. Ortte has been president of the Board of Supervisors—AS:

No Bond issues with exception of School Bonds. No questionable transfer of County Funds. No refunding of Bonds. All principal and interest on bonds have been paid. County bought $35,000 School bonds saving interest. Paid all debts incurred by County 1947 hurricane damage. First time in many years the County is operating on a cash basis. MISSISSIPPI JOB SELLING

The Senate Committee investigating job selling in Mississippi this week filed its report. Space here does not permit an extended analysis. However, the following "Conclusions and Findings" of the Committee should prove interesting.

"1. The Mississippi Democratic Committee, a self-appointed group which had no legal status, displaced the regular Democratic State Executive Committee which had been legally organized under the election laws of the State. This rump committee, which was given unofficial recognition by the Democratic National Committee in the fall of 1948, selected Clarence E. Hood, Jr., as its national committeeman. In the summer of 1949 the national committee recognized Hood as acting national committeeman for Mississippi and designated him as Federal patronage adviser in the State.

"2. From 1949 until February 1951, most of the recommendations for Federal patronage in Mississippi were made by Hood. The bulk of the Federal patronage appointments during that period were for jobs as acting postmasters and rural mail carriers. Hood and those

How Bakery Dollar is Divided

Includes salesmen's pay, truck operations, advertising, etc.

Rising costs of labor involved in the manufacture and distribution of bakery products, and not higher farm prices or greater profits, are largely responsible for increases in prices of bakery products in recent years, the Senate Committee on Forestry and Agriculture reported recently. Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana is chairman of the committee.

A study of operating costs and profits in the baking industry conducted by the committee revealed that baker profits after taxes in the first quarter of 1951 averaged 3.4%. On a pound loaf of bread, this would be approximately one half cent. The profit was the smallest reported in the past five years.

"Today a pound of bakery products reflects 1.9 cents higher costs for ingredients and 2.5 cents higher costs for manufacturing labor and distribution than in 1945," the report said. "The baking industry has maintained approximately the same profit ratio to total sales since 1946—three to five per cent.

"Farm products make up a smaller proportion of the retail cost of bakery products than at any time since the end of World War II. Distribution costs have increased sharply in recent years. Packaging materials costs increased more than one-third."

Bakers are taking a steadily increasing total supply of American farm products, according to the latest figures show that bakers are purchasing annually nearly 13 billion pounds of flour which requires 300 million bushels of wheat; three hundred million pounds of eggs, more than a billion pounds of shortenings, two and a half billion pounds of sugar, and millions of pounds of fruit, berries and other farm products.

The deplorable situation in Mississippi, which was disclosed as a result of this inquiry, is attributable to the fact that the national committee saw fit to involve political reprisals by taking away the Federal patronage rights of the Mississippi congressional delegation and turning over that political power to an irresponsible and over the heads of any political party or administration, delegate political power, as was done in this case, to persons who are not answerable to the voters or who are not responsible even to the membership of their own political party, such action leads to the corruption of public affairs.

"10. The subcommittee of the Department of Justice concerning the sale of Federal jobs, the possible perjury in the record in this case, the attempted influencing of witnesses, and other matters which appear to involve violations of the Federal criminal statutes. As the result of the disclosures in this case, the Attorney General has instructed one of his special assistants to initiate a Federal grand jury investigation in Mississippi into all phases of the case. This special assistant has been also directed to assist in the trial of any criminal prosecution which might result from the grand jury inquiry.

"While the subcommittee does not condone the actions of those persons who bought or attempted to buy Federal jobs in Mississippi, it is the considered opinion of the subcommittee that the majority of those people were victims of a political situation which was not their making. The real culprits are those members and representatives of the Mississippi Democratic Committee who made it necessary for Federal job seekers in that State to pay the price of obtaining Federal employment. The vicious political situation is especially deplorable in those cases where Federal jobs were given away without any consideration of the qualifications of the Mississippi Democratic Committee nominees, and that they had no right to the jobs as they were Actually there were no such jobs in the Office of Price Stabilization. Hood recommended the job seekers who were the victims of this corrupt practice and he delegated much of the authority to those who were actually selling the jobs. One witness testified that Hood was present when the representative of the Mississippi Democratic Committee attempted to sell that witness a job. Under these circumstances and in view of Hood's close relationship with various representatives of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, even though the evidence does not disclose that he handled any of the job-selling transaction personally, the subcommittee is of the opinion that Hood was aware of, or should have been, of the corrupt activities of his political associates and he cannot escape responsibility in this matter.

"7. The Post Office Department is primarily responsible for selecting applicants for post-office positions from the civil-service eligible lists. If, as in this case, the Post Office Department seeks the advice and recommendations of the Mississippi Democratic Committee or any other group or individuals, it cannot avoid its responsibility for failing to appoint qualified persons in a legal and proper manner. The personnel in conflict with what, if testimony is in conflict as to what, if any, actual notice the Post Office Department might have had concerning the sale of post office jobs in Mississippi prior to the public disclosure in this case. However, in view of the time, the Post Office Department, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered and put an end to this illegal practice long before the matter was brought to public attention in February 1951. The Post Office Department did, however, act vigorously and promptly to uncover the sale of postal jobs after the matter was brought to its attention by Congress.

"8. The evidence indicates that Hood, Jackson, and possibly others connected with the Mississippi Democratic Committee sought to use the political power and prestige of the committee for their personal financial advantage by attempting to exert influence in Government contracts RFC loans, and other Government transactions. While there is no evidence that these individuals were able to profit financially from these proposed business transactions, the subcommittee is of the opinion that they would have continued to use their influence in the field of Government loans and contracts for their own financial advantage, had they been allowed to retain their political power.

"9. The chairman and other officials of the Democratic National Committee are responsible for turning over Federal patronage rights and other political representative of the Mississippi Democratic Committee to whom he had delegated his patronage powers was instrumental in appointing approximately 100 post office employees in Mississippi.

"3. Frank P. Mize, the chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, who was responsible for the orderly management of the committee, allowed it to be operated in a slipshod manner, and for over a year prior to this inquiry no committee meetings were held. As the result of this situation the actual operation and political power of the committee was usurped by a small group, including Clarence E. Hood, Jr., Frank P. Mize, Curtis Rogers, Forrest B. Jackson, and E. C. Beasley. Most of the other members of the committee took little or no active part in its operation or actually withdrew from the organization.

"4. The subcommittee, by reconstructing the woefully inadequate records of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, found that during its two and a half years of operation the committee is known to have collected approximately $65,000. Of that amount $21,000 was collected from Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners and $42,000 was received in contributions. However, the subcommittee is of the opinion that in all probability these figures do not represent the total amounts handled by the committee. This conclusion is based upon the fact that no effort was made to maintain adequate books and records, a substantial number of cash contributions were received by the committee and its representatives, there are serious conflicts in testimony regarding the receipt of such cash contributions, and the circumstances regarding the deposit of substantial amounts of cash in the personal bank account of Curtis Rogers.

"5. There is no evidence that the Mississippi Democratic Committee contributed any money to the Democratic National Committee, and it appears that only a small part of the funds was used for any legitimate political purposes. Most of the funds known to have been collected by the committee appear to have been frittered away for travel and other so-called business expenses by the small group of individuals who controlled the committee.

"6. Based on all of the available evidence the subcommittee is of the opinion that Rogers, Beasley, Mize, and Jackson used the political power of the Mississippi Democratic Committee to extort contributions from persons seeking Federal appointments in Mississippi. This group, both directly and through the use of minor political henchmen, sold post-office jobs and obtained money from various individuals on the promise that those individuals would be appointed to or would control the appointment of county positions in the Office of Price Stabilization.

Based on all of the available evidence the subcommittee is of the opinion that Rogers, Beasley, Mize, and Jackson used the political power of the Mississippi Democratic Committee to extort contributions from persons seeking Federal appointments in Mississippi. This group, both directly and through the use of minor political henchmen, sold post-office jobs and obtained money from various individuals on the promise that those individuals would be appointed to or would control the appointment of county positions in the Office of Price Stabilization.

power to the Mississippi Democratic Committee. The deplorable situation in Mississippi, which was disclosed as a result of this inquiry, is attributable to the fact that the national committee saw fit to involve political reprisals by taking away the Federal patronage rights of the Mississippi congressional delegation and turning over that political power to an irresponsible and over the heads of any political party or administration, delegate political power, as was done in this case, to persons who are not answerable to the voters or who are not responsible even to the membership of their own political party, such action leads to the corruption of public affairs.

"10. The subcommittee of the Department of Justice concerning the sale of Federal jobs, the possible perjury in the record in this case, the attempted influencing of witnesses, and other matters which appear to involve violations of the Federal criminal statutes. As the result of the disclosures in this case, the Attorney General has instructed one of his special assistants to initiate a Federal grand jury investigation in Mississippi into all phases of the case. This special assistant has been also directed to assist in the trial of any criminal prosecution which might result from the grand jury inquiry.

"While the subcommittee does not condone the actions of those persons who bought or attempted to buy Federal jobs in Mississippi, it is the considered opinion of the subcommittee that the majority of those people were victims of a political situation which was not their making. The real culprits are those members and representatives of the Mississippi Democratic Committee who made it necessary for Federal job seekers in that State to pay the price of obtaining Federal employment. The vicious political situation is especially deplorable in those cases where Federal jobs were given away without any consideration of the qualifications of the Mississippi Democratic Committee nominees, and that they had no right to the jobs as they were Actually there were no such jobs in the Office of Price Stabilization. Hood recommended the job seekers who were the victims of this corrupt practice and he delegated much of the authority to those who were actually selling the jobs. One witness testified that Hood was present when the representative of the Mississippi Democratic Committee attempted to sell that witness a job. Under these circumstances and in view of Hood's close relationship with various representatives of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, even though the evidence does not disclose that he handled any of the job-selling transaction personally, the subcommittee is of the opinion that Hood was aware of, or should have been, of the corrupt activities of his political associates and he cannot escape responsibility in this matter.

"7. The Post Office Department is primarily responsible for selecting applicants for post-office positions from the civil-service eligible lists. If, as in this case, the Post Office Department seeks the advice and recommendations of the Mississippi Democratic Committee or any other group or individuals, it cannot avoid its responsibility for failing to appoint qualified persons in a legal and proper manner. The personnel in conflict with what, if testimony is in conflict as to what, if any, actual notice the Post Office Department might have had concerning the sale of post office jobs in Mississippi prior to the public disclosure in this case. However, in view of the time, the Post Office Department, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered and put an end to this illegal practice long before the matter was brought to public attention in February 1951. The Post Office Department did, however, act vigorously and promptly to uncover the sale of postal jobs after the matter was brought to its attention by Congress.

"8. The evidence indicates that Hood, Jackson, and possibly others connected with the Mississippi Democratic Committee sought to use the political power and prestige of the committee for their personal financial advantage by attempting to exert influence in Government contracts RFC loans, and other Government transactions. While there is no evidence that these individuals were able to profit financially from these proposed business transactions, the subcommittee is of the opinion that they would have continued to use their influence in the field of Government loans and contracts for their own financial advantage, had they been allowed to retain their political power.

"9. The chairman and other officials of the Democratic National Committee are responsible for turning over Federal patronage rights and other political representative of the Mississippi Democratic Committee to whom he had delegated his patronage powers was instrumental in appointing approximately 100 post office employees in Mississippi.

"3. Frank P. Mize, the chairman of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, who was responsible for the orderly management of the committee, allowed it to be operated in a slipshod manner, and for over a year prior to this inquiry no committee meetings were held. As the result of this situation the actual operation and political power of the committee was usurped by a small group, including Clarence E. Hood, Jr., Frank P. Mize, Curtis Rogers, Forrest B. Jackson, and E. C. Beasley. Most of the other members of the committee took little or no active part in its operation or actually withdrew from the organization.

"4. The subcommittee, by reconstructing the woefully inadequate records of the Mississippi Democratic Committee, found that during its two and a half years of operation the committee is known to have collected approximately $65,000. Of that amount $21,000 was collected from Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners and $42,000 was received in contributions. However, the subcommittee is of the opinion that in all probability these figures do not represent the total amounts handled by the committee. This conclusion is based upon the fact that no effort was made to maintain adequate books and records, a substantial number of cash contributions were received by the committee and its representatives, there are serious conflicts in testimony regarding the receipt of such cash contributions, and the circumstances regarding the deposit of substantial amounts of cash in the personal bank account of Curtis Rogers.

"5. There is no evidence that the Mississippi Democratic Committee contributed any money to the Democratic National Committee, and it appears that only a small part of the funds was used for any legitimate political purposes. Most of the funds known to have been collected by the committee appear to have been frittered away for travel and other so-called business expenses by the small group of individuals who controlled the committee.

Gulf's Waste Salt Water Systems Use Modern Conservation Methods

Pictured above is one of the most unusual of modern conservation methods now in use in Mississippi in connection with oil and gas production. It is Gulf Refining Company's West Heidelberg Waste Water System No. 1 located in Jasper County. This and five other similar waste water disposal systems located in East Heidelberg, Euclid and Baxterville fields enabled Gulf to solve the problem of disposing of the large volume of salt water that is brought to the surface along with the oil and gas produced in these areas. These systems were installed in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the State Oil and Gas Board. From some producing wells Gulf gets oil, gas and salt water. This flows through a treater from which oil goes to storage tanks, gas into gas lines, and now the salt water goes to waste salt water systems like the one shown here and is returned to salt water bearing formations deep in the earth. The systems work as follows: (1) is the filter, into which the salt water from the oil or gas wells flows and there is filtered through a bed of sand and a section of carburendum to remove any oil that may remain. The filtered salt water

NEW STEAM GENERATING PLANT AT SWEATT FULL OPERATION Mississippi Power Company's Plant Sweets near Meridian Has 58,000 Horsepower Capacity

Mayor Laurence Faine of Meridian turned a valve recently setting in motion the mighty generator on full load, commercial operation at Plant Sweett, Mississippi Power Company's new steam electric generating plant near Meridian. The low hum of the turbo-generator was the only indication that an additional 58,000 horsepower of electrical generating capacity was at work.

Plant Sweett is the largest single construction job ever completed in the Meridian area. Work was started in October 1949 when Governor Wright turned the first spadeful of earth at the ground breaking ceremonies. At that time he referred to the plant as "A symbol of the faith which a private industry has in the future of Mississippi through the expansion of its facilities" and "One of the highlights of the industrial development of our state".

The new plant is a part of Mississippi Power Company's construction program which has been moving at an accelerated rate since early in 1948. Other major projects include 90,000 horsepower of generating capacity at Plant Eaton and a 107 mile 110,000 volt transmission line between the two plants by way of Newton. This provides a second 110,000 volt tie-in, assuring continuity of service.

Plant Sweett generates electricity at 13,800 volts and this is stepped up to 110,000 volts in the plant substation for transmission to the farms, homes, business and industries of south-east Mississippi. All communities served by the company are connected to Plant Sweett through a high voltage interconnecting transmission network.

During a luncheon preceding the brief ceremony, Mr. L. P. Sweett, President of the company, announced that construction would begin immediately on a second 58,000 horsepower generating unit at this plant. This additional unit will be a duplication of the one just completed. Materials have been ordered for some time and it is expected that the additional unit will be completed in early 1953.

"We are continuing," said Mr. Sweett, "our policy formulated in the beginning of the company in 1925 of building in advance of future needs to assure the section we serve of ample power for all purposes at the lowest possible cost. Our faith in the future growth and development of our state multiplies with each passing year and we are backing our beliefs in the expenditure of many millions annually for new facilities and improvements."

Mr. Sweett pointed out that this plant is one of eight plants to be built on the Southern Company system during 1951-54. These plants will provide an additional one million kilowatts of generating capacity during that time. All operating companies of The Southern Company are interconnected by high voltage transmission lines.

Plant Sweett, like Mississippi Power Company's other modern installations, Plant Eaton, is a gas fired high pressure, steam electric generating plant. However, unlike Plant Eaton, it is built entirely above ground level. The first major phase of construction was the driving of more than 700 ten inch steel pipe pilings. These were then filled with concrete. Average depth of the pilings is approximately forty feet although some were driven as much as seventy-five feet.

These pilings support the base slab, a tremendous concrete slab three feet thick upon which the massive building is constructed. More than 2,000 cubic yards of concrete were required for the base slab. From the base slab the building towers 113 feet into the air, equivalent to a ten story building.

Added to this is a penthouse, housing a stair well and an elevator shaft, which will bring the total height to approximately 140 feet. The building is rectangular with the outside dimensions being 114 feet by 143 feet, with an electrical room on one side 35 feet by 28 feet.

Other structures in connection with the plant are: A cooling tower with a 30,000 gallon reservoir; a 20,000 barrel capacity fuel oil storage tank; a 15,000 gallon lighter oil fuel tank and several smaller tanks.

All water used for the plant is obtained from deep wells drilled to a depth of approximately one thousand feet. With the plant running at capacity almost 50 million gallons of water are used for cooling purposes in a 24 hour period. The cooling tower, of course, allows this water to be used again and again with little loss.

The tremendous, highly efficient boiler of this plant, consumes over 13 million cubic feet of gas in a 24 hour period. Steam, heated to 900 degrees Fahrenheit, enters the turbine at a pressure of 850 pounds per square inch. After it has passed through the turbine, its heat is only approximately 100 degrees. During its passage it has rotated the generator at a speed of 3600 revolutions per minute and approximately 1,000,000 KWH of electricity can be generated during each 24 hour period. Approximately two years were required for construction of this massive plant, and more than 70,000 man days of labor.

LWV Announces Schedule For Radio Programs

The League of Women Voters of Bay St. Louis had its second general meeting of 1951 on June 21 at 8 p.m. at the Youth Center. Mrs. Paul Miller, League president, conducted the meeting.

The chairman of the standing committees gave their reports. Mrs. John Husband, publicity, announced that the Bay St. Louis League will have three monthly radio programs, from Gulfport on the third Tuesday of each month, from 11:15 to 11:25; from Biloxi on the first Friday of each month from 9:45 to 10:00 a.m. and from Piquette at some hour not as yet determined. Mrs. Husband requested that any members who could help with these programs give her their names. She also thanked the two newspapers for the generous cooperation they have been giving her.

Mrs. Maumus, voters service, reported that questionnaires had been sent to all the candidates in the August Primaries, and that answers are beginning to come in. Voters Service will make every effort to get out a record vote for this election.

Mrs. Ernest Samuel reported on the national league conference which she attended in April in Washington, D.C. She said that the conference was very stimulating and instructive.

Mrs. George Lehlertner introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Lucy Benjamin Lemann of New Orleans and New York. Mrs. Lemann spoke about the Atlantic Union, and stressed the urgency of its support. Mrs. Lemann said that other considerations must be put aside and every effort bent toward implementing this last hope of the Democracies to prevent war and achieve a lasting peace.

After an informal question and answer period, the meeting was adjourned.

CANDIDATES SEAN LINER, JIMMIE WALKER, HOSPITAL PROGRAM
 "Big Men" bootleggers are doing everything in their power to retain prohibition in Mississippi. Jesse Byrd charged recently at Gardis, promising to "expose the professional prohibition propagandists as racketeers" if he is elected governor.
 Byrd, the only avowed wet candidate in the eight-man race for the Democratic nomination in August, declared "retaining the old emotional misstatements prohibitionists have always used" will do the liquor dealers no good this time.

MRS. CAIN, JIMMY WALKER
 Mississippi's power companies were dragged into the campaign by two of the other eight candidates, Mrs. Mary Cain and Jimmie Walker.
 Mrs. Cain spoke favorably, Walker criticized the present tax law governing the concerns.
 Speaking in Quitman, Waynesboro and Prentiss, the campaign's only woman candidate said what the power companies need is "freedom from the type of competition afforded by TVA. Walker took a different tack at Carthage where he charged the two utilities should be paying taxes at the rate of $22.50 a pole mile in the right KVV pole lines.

BARNETT
 Ross Barnett told an Oakland audience that "increasing farm production is not a laughing matter to me nor to the nation's military leaders."
 He advocates stepping up production as the principal answer to farm problems. "Some candidates scoffed at me," he said after being introduced by State Sen. John Rundle, "but it is not a laughing matter."

JOHNSON
 Johnson charged at Houlika that "all the other candidates are gangling me and are stealing my platform plank by plank in an effort to force a second primary."

LUMPKIN
 Lt. Gov. Sam Lumpkin struck out at "immorality in public office" in speeches at Indianola and Ruleville.
 "During the job sales investigation in Jackson," Lumpkin declared, "under oath one of the witnesses testified they had collected $80,000 from veterans for rural mail carrier and post office appointments."

"He said they took some of that money to Washington to the National Democratic committee and were told to bring it back, get into the governor's race and become the balance of power in order to control the Mississippi delegation to the Democratic convention."

Family SIRLOIN Steaks
AT "THE PINES"

Former Gov. Hugh White, a member of the state building commission for many years, cited the state's budding hospital construction program as an answer to Paul Johnson's attacks on the Charity hospital system.
 Johnson criticized construction of new state office buildings while the charity hospitals slipped into a state of disrepair.

Fortunes have been made because the seller persuades buyers that they were getting bargains.
 Home-front grocers should be sent over to Korea, to spend a day and a night at the front.

The intelligence of the populace seems to move upward slowly, despite the millions spent upon education.

SALT DOME TO BE STORAGE VAULT FOR BUTANE
 Something new for Mississippi in the manner of storing butane gas is underway. Plans are to drill into the salt dome and pump live steam into the holes to create a reservoir to hold the gas. Salt recovered from the hole will be pumped into an open pit near the well. Before gas is injected into the hole, pipe will be set into the salt to prevent contamination by water from up the hole. Though this method of storage is new for Mississippi it has been successfully used in Texas for sometime.

MACHINE FOR INSPECTION OF SWEETPOTATOES
 The deadline for inspection of seed sweetpotatoes plants has been changed from June 1 to July 1, according to R. P. Colmer of State College, Chief Inspector for the State Board. This decision was made at a recent meeting of the board. Because of the drought, scarcely fifty of the usual applications for inspection had been received by June 1. Mississippi sweetpotato growers are expected to sell, exchange, or give away seed sweetpotatoes or potato vines this season must make written application before July 1, to the State Board at State College for a money order for $5 cents with the application," Colmer stated.

SENIOR WINS $300 BORDEN SCHOLARSHIP
 Albert H. Spinks of Rosedale, a junior in general agriculture, has won the $300 scholarship award offered annually by the Borden Company Foundation. This award is made each year to the senior in the School of Agriculture who has achieved the highest average in all college work preceding his senior year and who has completed at least one regular course in dairying. The winner of this award was Robert H. Andrews, a dairy man from Tylertown, Miss. Mr. Andrews graduated with honors on May 28, and has accepted a position in dairy technology at the University of Illinois.

TAKE ATOMIC COURSE
 The Warren County District Association of the Mississippi Nurses Association announced the completion of the ten hour course in "Aspects of atomic energy." This was a joint project with the Mississippi Civil Defense Council. The course was held at the 12 nurses who attended the course conducted in New Orleans by representatives of the Mississippi Civil Defense Security Resources Board and the U.S. Public Health Service. Miss Kandel is the Nurse Education Consultant for the Board of Nurses' Examiners for Mississippi. The course was conducted approximately 4 two and one-half hour periods. There were seventeen registered nurses for the second level class work who in turn each had 10 nurses either registered or student nurses in their classes.

4-H GIRLS VIE FOR HONORS IN DEVELOPING METHODS TO PREPARE DAIRY FOODS

June is dairy month. Trying for a record, are some 1,000 Mississippi 4-H girls who are thinking up new ways to use the abundant supply of milk. They are participating in the 1951 National 4-H Dairy Foods Demonstration program, and will vie for top honors in county as well as in state and national competition. While a demonstration looks easy, it is by no means easy to achieve. Many hours of study and practice go into perfecting a demonstration before the girls are ready to step on the stage in their crisp white uniforms—poised, confident and sure of their subject. They also must be ready to answer questions from the audience afterwards. The program is arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work and supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Who remembers the man who used to rely implicitly upon the weather predictions contained in the almanac? Culture is the product of versatility and leisure, aided and abetted by some cash.
